A GREAT STRIKE.

Hungary Threatened With Mighty Labor Trouble.

In Hungary the harvest is in a critical state, says the London Economist. Not only has the inclement weather dashed the hopes of an excellent harvest to the ground, but for the first time the effect of the Socialist propaganda is felt to a large extent in the very heart of agricultural Hungary, in the fertile Alföld country. A universal strike of harvest laborers has been announced, but the Hungarian Government have decided not to expose the ingathering of the harvest, upon which the well-being of the whole country depends, to the good or bad will of the laborers.

A great number of most energetic measures have been taken. Not only has the number of gendarmes in all the threatened provinces been increased, but the consent of the War Minister has been given to the concentration of troops, whose task it will be to protect the laborers who will work so that the strikers cannot terrorize them. The Minister of Agriculture has decided to concentrate an army of harvest laborers on the Government estate of Mezohegyes, where they will be provided for until need for them arises.

As long as the laborers engaged for the harvest keep their engagements, these reserve laborers will work on the Government estate. But the moment that any proprietor sends word that his laborers have struck work, the required number of laborers will be sent to the property in question, protected by soldiers, who will stay on the property until the harvest is over. Should these reserves be insufficient to satisfy all demands, the Government has provided that the men employed in the extensive Government forests shall be ready to help in the harvest, and if more still are needed, convicts will be taken from the prisons.

Y. M. C. A. CLASSES.

Educational Committee to Make Final Arrangements Today.

The Educational Committee of the Y. M. C. A. will meet in the association hall at 4 p. m. today for the purpose of making final arrangements for the coming term of the Y. M. C. A. classes. Much work along that line has already been done. The principal business this afternoon will be the selection of the remaining teachers necessary to carry on the work.

The Y. M. C. A. classes have become very popular, and many a young man has received a position just simply by the help that was given him there. As each year goes by new requirements are brought to light, and these are acted upon at the opening of the next year.

The first term this year will open on September 20th, and will last 13 weeks, while the second will open January 10th, to last the same length of time. All classes, with the exception of the elementary, will be given one evening each week. The elementary classes will have three evenings in a week. Examinations will be given and certificates granted.

The following instructors have already been chosen: Shorthand—B. L. Marx. Typewriting—M. F. Bluxome. Mechanical Drawing—A. L. Colston of Punahou. Civil Government and Commercial Law—J. Q. Wood.

Mechanical drawing, civil government and commercial law are all new branches in the Y. M. C. A. course. Music will not be a feature this year. Lectures will be given at intervals on medicine, law, etc., by local talent, and at times, it is hoped that noted people from abroad will be able to give the pupils a profitable evening. There is talk of a reception at the beginning of the coming term, but as yet nothing definite has been decided on.

New Wilder Steamer.

Word was received from San Francisco at the office of the Wilder Steamship Company yesterday that the new boat now being built at the Union Iron Works, would be ready before the contract time, February 1, 1898; also, that the steel to be used is of a very much better quality than that agreed to in the contract.

HE DID NOT GO TO AUSTRALIA.

Nothing is easier than to recommend a man to go to Australia. A dozen words or so out of your mouth and you have done it. But for him to act on your advice—that is a gray horse of another color. You see, Australia is half-way round the world; and to pull up stakes here and go there—family, interests, and all—is a job no man takes in hand save for the strongest sort of reasons.

Yet that is what Mr. Emrys Morgan Price, grocer and tea merchant, of Trehafoed Road, Hafod, S. Wales, was advised to do by a doctor at Merthyr. Now, we don't say but that the result, if Mr. Price had gone, would have proved the doctor's judgment to be sound; but as it happened Mr. Price came out all right in the end by just staying at home.

The facts are briefly these: In August, 1881, the customary coral competition took place at Abergavenny, and Mr. Price attended. In some way—he falls to state how, and it doesn't matter—he took cold and had a chill. When he arrived home at Dowlais he could scarcely breathe. To draw his lungs full of air was quite impossible. In fact, he felt as if he were suffocating. Of course, there was no more thought of singing; the question was one of getting breath enough to live on. He at once tried that good old-fashioned remedy, mustard plasters, putting them on his chest and perhaps on his back between the shoulder blades. They relieved him for the time, as we might expect. But mustard plasters do one thing—no more. They draw some blood from the inflamed parts to the surface; that's all. When they have set up a bit of mild counter-irritation they are done; they don't get down to deep causes. And here there was a deep cause. We will point it out presently.

There was a constant whistling noise in his throat, he says. You hear it in children when they have croup. It means that the air passages are contracted and the breath has to pass violently through a small orifice. Disease has often strangled people to death that way. "Next," he says, "a violent cough set in. I coughed and spat up thick phlegm night and day."

This meant more and worse inflammation, and shows us the spectacle of Nature trying to get rid of the product—the phlegm or mucus. But to cough night and day! Think of it. What becomes of a man's appetite and sleep? You can imagine. No wonder the doctor at Merthyr was anxious and suggested a change of climate.

Still, Mr. Price, as we have said, remained at home and consulted other physicians, one at Dowlais and one at Hafod. All the doctors agreed that their patient was suffering from acute bronchitis, and very properly treated him for that. Yet somehow their medicines failed to effect any real and radical good. That they were temporarily helpful we may not doubt. But, you see, bronchitis, once seated, is an obstinate and progressive ailment. It has a tendency to take up new ground and to get down on the lungs, the reason being that the lining of the air passages and of the lungs is all one thing. So an affection of any part of it, if not cured, spreads like fire in dry grass.

"As time went on," says Mr. Price, "I got weaker and weaker and my breathing became distressing to hear. All my friends thought I was a consumptive, and as a sister of mine had died of that complaint, I naturally felt alarmed. Indeed, one night in July, 1885, I was so bad that my wife thought I was dying."

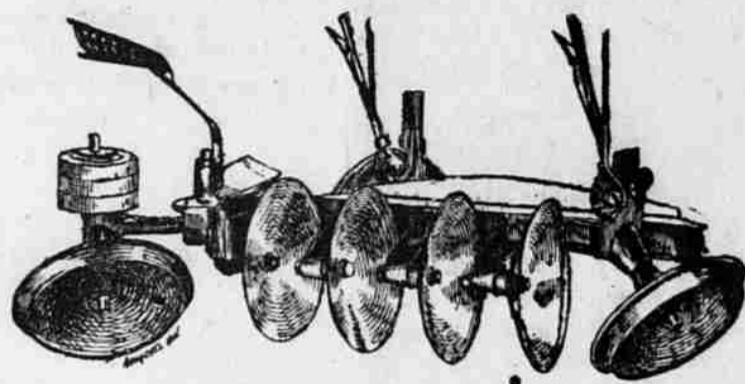

Happily the lady was mistaken, yet death sometimes comes with fearful suddenness in that complaint, and her fear was very reasonable. At that time, please remember, our good friend had suffered about four years, and was in a state of low vitality. The whole body was feeble and exhausted, and there would have been nothing surprising in a fatal termination. But a better result was in store, as we shall now see.

Mr. Price's letter, dated August 16th, 1893, concludes in these words: "Better and worse I continued in the power of this malady year after year, and had given up all hopes of ever getting better. In February, 1887, after having endured it five years and a half, I read of a person at Pontypool having been cured of the same thing by Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup. I got a supply of it, and in a few days I felt relief. I kept on with it and gradually improved. In six months the cough had left me and I was a well man. Since then I have been sound as a bell. If you like you may publish my statement, and I will gladly answer any inquiries. (Signed) EMRYS MORGAN PRICE."

Good! That is pleasant and cheering to hear. One word—an important word. Bronchitis, pneumonia, rheumatism, gout, nervous disorders, liver complaint, kidney trouble, and most of our familiar diseases are caused by poison in the blood; and the poison is produced by stomach fermentation, indigestion and dyspepsia. Consumption itself comes in the same way. Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup drives out the poison and stops the manufacture of more. That's why it cured Mr. Price and will cure anybody.
